

Future Energy Institute

The scientist responsible for fuels research here at FEI has disappeared, taking with him all of his work regarding the experimental fuel that was to power the Secret Energy Project.

I believe he may have buried the only known fuel sample beneath the cornerstone of the "New Silverdale Community Library". There is just one problem; the library is part of planned utopian community that hasn't been built yet!

One of the work crews assigned to the library "accidentally" left some interesting documents behind, use them to locate and retrieve the fuel sample.

IMPORTANT: Check with the project foreman to confirm the exact location of the library before you leave!